Using Simulations to Plan and Prepare for Drought
Wednesday, February 6, 2013
Noon –1:00 p.m. CST

This is the first webinar of the 2013 series. Throughout the webinar you will learn about interactive drought tournaments, how they were achieved, and obtain valuable information on holding your own event. The webinar will be kicked off with an update from the NIDIS program office and followed by an interactive agenda that strives to reach every sector of drought planning and research.

Interactive Topics Include:

- The Role of Drought Tournaments in NIDIS
- The Role of Drought Tournaments in Drought and in the Broader Context of Natural Hazards Mitigation Planning
- Experiences from Drought Tournaments and how States and other Stakeholder Groups use this Planning Information for the Future
